New York at Its Core

Port City, 1609–1898 tells the story of New York's remarkable evolution from an outpost for trade between the Dutch and Native people into the nation's largest, most densely populated, most diverse, and most influential city.

World City, 1898–2020 showcases the dizzying evolution of New York as it grew into a modern global metropolis and survived and reinvented itself during the course of the tumultuous 20th century.

Food in New York

Examine how food creates a powerful social network that binds New Yorkers to each other and with countless others across the globe. Closes September 18

This Is New York

In honor of the Museum's centennial, this full-floor exhibition explores the many ways that the city has inspired storytelling in film and television, song and poetry, literature, visual and performing arts, and fashion.

Enjoy art, interactives, and artifacts depicting the streets and subways of New York in Tempo of the City; the stories of home and community in At Home in New York; and the images of the magnetic places where New Yorkers and visitors alike gather in Destination NYC.

You Are Here is an immersive film, which draws on the rich archive of movies set in the city to create a dazzling montage of cinematic moments that comment on each other across time and space.

Scenes from the City features a treasure trove of behind-the-scenes stills of feature films being made in New York, which have created a dynamic and ever-evolving portrait of the city.
